SOME ESSENTIALS OF CONSTRUCTIVE CRIMINOLOGY. DAVID COOMBS PEYTON, M. D. , SUPERINTENDENT STATE REFORMATORY, JEFFERSONVILLE, INDIANA. These are the most chaotic and momentous years perhaps in the whole history of man. This epoch is either the beginning or the ending of civilization. The seething torrent of the social maelstrom is compounded of all the forces in life, ethical, material, economic, social, and all others that can be moved by human agency. We are now in the final struggle between autocracy and democracy, between idealism and materialism, between force and justice, between might and right, between good and evil, and this cataclysm has been precipitated by the mad ambition of one man--a regal neuropath, an hereditary degenerate. Its righteous ending, which no man can doubt, will leave the world topsy-turvy but sane and incomparably richer spiritually and mentally. Thinking men cannot have...
